

Advance Care Planning Checklist

What Matters Most?

There are many steps you can take to have the conversation and make your wishes known! Get started today:

- Make a list of the three most important things you want those close to you to know about your wishes for end-of-life care.
- Think about who you would want to make your medical care decisions for you if you could not speak for yourself.
- Plan when and where you might want to talk to that person and others close to you about your wishes.
- Make a list of questions you would like to ask your doctor.
- Fill out an advance care planning document to record your wishes and legally appoint the person (surrogate) who will speak for you if you can't speak for yourself.
- Make copies of your document and give them to your surrogate(s), your doctors and anyone else you would like to know your wishes.
- If you already have an advance care plan or an advance directive, review it to make sure it still conveys your current wishes.
- Talk with those close to you about their wishes.
